

Food, Fuel, Shelter, Jobs – Hemp is NOW

The Daily Chimp

Now, I don't smoke cannabis myself, it makes me cough and go cross eyed – I kid you not.

However, I have no problem whatsoever with people smoking it, cept maybe when they drone on at me and then forget what they were going to tell me in the first fucking place... But I can happily live with that.

You see, despite what the Dacre Dicks would have you believe, Cannabis does not turn people into marauding murderous psychopaths.

Neither does it kill you – despite what the Dacre Dicks may report in their shit rag.

Then again, they would say that though wouldn't they since the Dacre Dicks are not there to report the truth... The Chimpanzee is a cesspit full of turds working hard to protect the interests of their turdish Zionist masters.

You see, the truth is the benefits, uses and products generated by the Cannabis plant are almost infinite and that includes curing cancer.

Check this list out:

- Hemp does not require herbicides or pesticides.
- Hemp can be grown in a wide range of latitudes and altitudes.
- Hemp replenishes soil with nutrients and nitrogen, making it an excellent rotational crop.
- Hemp controls erosion of the topsoil.
- Hemp converts CO₂ to oxygen better than trees.
- Hemp produces more oil than any other crop, which can be used for food, fuel, lubricants, soaps, etc.
- Hemp nut is a very healthy food, being the highest protein crop (after soybean) and high in omega oils.
- Hemp can be used for making plastics, including car parts.
- Hemp makes paper more efficiently and ecologically than wood, requiring no chemical glues.
- Hemp can be used to make fiberboard.
- Hemp can be used to make paint.
- Hemp can produce bio-fuel and ethanol (better than corn).
- Hemp can be grown more than once per year.
- Hemp fibers can make very strong rope and textiles.

Source

Now think of all the multinational corporations that we could do away with if we harvested fields upon fields of cannabis and by doing so also stop the elitist cunts from raping OUR planet.

But that will never happen whilst we have the likes of the Cunt Cameron calling the shots because Cannabis cannot be patented... No money in it.

Not that the Cunt Cameron wasn't partial to a joint or three himself whilst learning to be a nonce ponce sniffenpissin monster... And like every other elite puppet enforcing the cannabis ban on what should be – by the law of nature – unenforceable, he too knows about the benefits.

Not that he would ever champion them.

You see, the likes of the vile Cunt Cameron & Gaylord Obama would have you believe that they care deeply about the planet, with their sick mantras about the need to cut carbon emissions and global warming – now repackaged as climate change – and any other ‘eco friendly’ fraud that they can use to make a vast profit from.

Yet the reality is that the warped cunts don’t give a fuck about the planet. All they give a fuck about is making money for themselves and their puppet masters... That and raping little children of course.

Thats why last week we saw articles about a paedophile jailed for just 2 years for raping an 8 year old little boy multiple times over a two year period, and another nonce who was prostituting children, just released from prison having been jailed for 4 years.

Yet today the Chimp carries a report of two men, one jailed for 3 years the other for 5.

And their crime?

Growing Cannabis plants... A gift of nature.

Not an artificial induced product... But a gift of nature.

How can that be a crime?

The crime is making a gift of nature a crime.

The criminals are not those who cultivate the plant. The criminals are those who criminalize the cultivation of the plant.

What kind of arse about fucking face world are we living in where cultivating a hugely beneficial, natural plant is a more serious crime than raping children?

You really, really couldn't make this shit up.

Two men who grew £500,000 worth of cannabis plants behind a secret trapdoor in a disused building jailed for eight years

- Operation rumbled when neighbourhood police officers sniffed out plants
- They discovered a four room cellar filled with cannabis in disused factory
- Robert Dibb jailed for three years and Wayne Ivory for five at Leeds Crown

By AMANDA WILLIAMS PUBLISHED: 18:26, 26 March 2014 | UPDATED: 09:54, 27 March 2014 Two men who grew cannabis plants worth half a million pounds concealed in a secret factory behind a trapdoor in a disused building have been jailed for eight years. The illegal operation was only rumbled when neighbourhood police officers sniffed out the plants at a disused former engineering works, in Stanningley, Leeds, West Yorkshire and discovered a four room cellar filled with cannabis. More than 600 plants were found growing in the factory along with a bin bag full of cannabis buds that had been harvested. The total value of the find was in excess of £500,000.

© rossparry.co.uk / Ross Parry

+6

© rossparry.co.uk / Ross Parry

+6

Robert Dibb and Wayne Ivory were charged with producing more than 20 kilograms of cannabis and were found guilty after a trial at Leeds Crown Court

Robert Dibb and Wayne Ivory were found bare-chested in the cellar due to the heat from powerful lamps. Both men were arrested on suspicion of the production of cannabis. The pair were charged with producing more than 20 kilograms of cannabis and were found guilty after a trial at Leeds Crown Court.

More...

- The Weetabix scam to get a phone into jail: Guards discover mobiles hidden inside hollowed out biscuits as prisoners create inventive ways to smuggle in contraband
- The deteriorating face of drug abuse: Shocking new video shows the devastating physical toll of addiction

Ivory, 42, of Stanningley, was sentenced to five years in prison and Dibb, 52, of Rawdon, received a three year term. Neighbourhood officer PC Chris Davey noticed a strong smell of cannabis and what appeared to be a brand new ventilation chimney on the roof of the building. Then when he and fellow officers entered they found a large, dusty workshop area which was covered with rubble and old furniture. The ventilation chimney had been bricked up and went straight down into the floor, raising officers' suspicions that plants may be in the cellar.

+6

The two men who grew cannabis plants worth half a million pounds concealed in a secret factory behind a trapdoor in a disused building have been jailed for eight years

+6

The illegal operation was only rumbled when neighbourhood police officers sniffed out the plants at a disused former engineering works, in Stanningley, Leeds, West Yorkshire and discovered a four room cellar filled with cannabis

They also noted that the floor was very warm despite there being no heating system. There was no obvious access to any cellar but they then heard the sound of a large metal box being moved. The officers saw a man emerge from a hole in the floor along with a flood of light and a strong smell of cannabis. The man disappeared back down the hole after being challenged by the officers. They followed him through the secret trapdoor and down a ladder and discovered a four-room cellar filled with cannabis plants. Further examination of the scene showed the metal box had been placed over the disguised trapdoor to conceal the cellar below, where they discovered Dibb and Ivory. Insp Simon Jessup, of the Armley, Bramley and Stanningley Neighbourhood Policing Team, said: 'This was a highly sophisticated cannabis growing operation that the offenders went to great lengths to conceal within what at face value appeared to be a dusty old disused factory.

+6

Officers entered through the secret trapdoor and down a ladder and discovered a four-room cellar filled with cannabis plants

+6

A metal box had been placed over the disguised trapdoor to conceal the cellar below, where they discovered Dibb and Ivory

'PC Davey however wasn't fooled and his suspicions led to the discovery of this cannabis farm and the downfall of the men running it. 'Neighbourhood officers like him spend a lot of time out in their communities and tend to notice when something isn't right. 'Yet again a significant quantity of cannabis has been seized before it could enter the illegal drugs market that fuels crime and anti-social behaviour in our communities. 'I would encourage local residents to look out for suspicious activity in their areas that could indicate a property is being used to grow cannabis. 'If people notice an unusual smell, boarded-up windows, electrical equipment being delivered in significant quantities, or people coming and going at all hours, I would urge them to pass their suspicions on to us so we can check it out.' Read more: <http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-2590048/Two-men->

grew-500-000-worth-cannabis-plants-secret-trapdoor-disused-building-jailed-eight-years.html#ixzz2xGhR7Hmx Follow us: @MailOnline on Twitter | DailyMail on Facebook