

It's A Funny Old Game

Christopher Spivey

If it wasn't blatantly obvious enough that this Covid Bollox is nothing more than an exercise in totalitarian control, designed to break the will of the people then it has certainly become so now.

I am of course talking about the fat, useless, puppet, Boris Johnson's order that mask wearing in shops will become compulsory on July 24th:

Wearing a face covering in shops and supermarkets in England is to become mandatory from 24 July.

Those who fail to comply with the new rules will face a fine of up to £100, the government is to announce.

The move will bring England into line with Scotland and other major European nations like Spain, Italy and Germany.

Since mid-May, the public have been advised to wear coverings in enclosed public spaces, where they may encounter people they would not usually meet.

It has been compulsory on public transport in England since 15 June.

Children under 11 and those with certain disabilities will be exempt.

Environment Secretary George Eustice told BBC Breakfast the new mandatory rule for face coverings in shops does not apply to retail staff.

“It is about managing the overall risk,” he added. “Any type of covering will be sufficient for this purpose.” Source

No it is not “about managing the overall risk” you diabolical cunt. It is about control.

And now would be a perfect time to say “Fuck you, ya dirty nonce cunts, we ain’t going to take no more”... But we here know that won’t happen because the vast majority of the population are already too compliant to do diddly squat about the situation.

Yet this new measure makes absolutely no sense what-so-fucking-ever... I mean the simple fact that masks in shops are not being enforced until the 24th of this months should tell you exactly what a bollox measure this is.

Moreover, this mask shit does not apply to bar and restaurants where people are much more tightly packed in next to each other, although it is obvious why it would be impracticable to wear a mask in such places.

Course, it could be argued that if it is so unsafe not to wear a mask in shops then bars and restaurants should not be allowed to open yet.

But once again, it all boils down to control and not reason. After all, we here know that by the governments own admittance, Covid 19 is not a High Consequence Infectious Disease – Simply because IT ISN'T, which the Government quantified on their own website 5 days before taking us into lockdown.

As of 19 March 2020, COVID-19 is no longer considered to be a high consequence infectious diseases (HCID) in the UK.

The 4 nations public health HCID group made an interim recommendation in January 2020 to classify COVID-19 as an HCID. This was based on consideration of the UK HCID criteria about the virus and the disease with information available during the early stages of the outbreak.

Now that more is known about COVID-19, the public health bodies in the UK have reviewed the most up to date information about COVID-19 against the UK HCID criteria. They have determined that several features have now changed; in particular, more information is available about mortality rates (low overall), and there is now greater clinical awareness and a specific and sensitive laboratory test, the availability of which continues to increase.

The Advisory Committee on Dangerous Pathogens (ACDP) is also of the opinion that COVID-19 should no longer be classified as an HCID... Source

Yet the National Press has totally ignored that fact – as they have on the Governments own stance on wearing masks:

UK Government advice on using masks the workplaces

Section 6.1 Face Coverings:

<https://www.gov.uk/guidance/working-safely-during-coronavirus-covid-19/labs-and-research-facilities>

“When managing the risk of COVID-19, additional PPE beyond what you usually wear is not beneficial. This is because COVID-19 is a different type of risk...and needs to be managed through social distancing, hygiene and fixed teams or partnering, not through the use of PPE.”

“Workplaces should not encourage the precautionary use of extra PPE to protect against COVID-19...”

“Unless you are in a situation where the risk of COVID-19 transmission is very high, your risk assessment should reflect the fact that the role of PPE in providing additional protection is extremely limited”.

“The evidence suggests that wearing a face covering does not protect you...”

“It is important to know that the evidence of the benefit of using a face covering to protect others is weak and the effect is likely to be small...”

“Similarly, face coverings are not the same as the PPE used to manage risks like dust and spray in an industrial context”.

“Wearing a face covering is optional and is not required by law, including in the workplace”.

I will however issue a word of caution on the above screenshot as I have not been able to establish it's authenticity – being as there are over 5000 pages related to section 6.1 Face Coverings... Course, having to wade through so much other shit is how the Government hides the truth.

Or put another way, they tell us the truth and then bury it so deeply that it is practically impossible to find.

Nevertheless, the fact that Covid 19 is not a High Consequence Infectious Disease is beyond doubt and common sense should tell you that face masks will do absolutely fuck all to keep you safe..

if masks cant prevent dry wall dust getting through how can they possibly prevent something 10 X smaller from getting through?

Course, it is strange that the Cunt Johnson has brought in this new rule just at the same time he is encouraging people to go back to their normal routine in order to save the economy... Indeed, it is a contradiction in terms since I believe that people are far less likely to go out shopping now that they have to muzzle themselves.

Nevertheless, the hundred squid fine will be a nice revenue raiser... Cunts.

And as for the number of people who have died of Covid 19? Well we know that is a scam.

Indeed, my old man supposedly died of Covid 19 on the 3rd of April yet I am 100% convinced that he didn't.

In fact I would suggest to you that the Doctors at Southend Hospital helped my Dad on his journey with powerful sedatives... As has been the norm throughout this fake pandemic:

Did care homes use powerful sedative to speed Covid deaths?

THE number of prescriptions for a powerful sedative that can kill the frail doubled at the height of the coronavirus pandemic, raising fears it was used to control elderly residents in stretched care homes – or even to hasten their deaths.

Official figures show out-of-hospital prescribing of the drug midazolam increased by more than 100 per cent in April compared to previous months.

An anti-euthanasia campaigner last night said he suspected that many people had been put on end-of-life protocols or 'pathways'.

Whistleblowers also claimed to have witnessed misuse of sedatives, with staff told to give them to dementia patients to stop them wandering the corridors.

The claims are unverified and were last night vigorously disputed by the Association for Palliative Medicine, which said that

By Stephen Adams
and Holly Bancroft

there were good reasons for the increase. Over the past five years, about 15,000 prescriptions for midazolam to be used outside of hospital have been written each month in England. In April, 38,582 prescriptions were made – more than twice the February figure.

Retired neurologist Professor Patrick Pullicino, who was instrumental in raising concerns a decade ago that the Liverpool Care Pathway was bringing forward patients' deaths, believes the jump indicated something similar had happened. He said: 'Midazolam depresses respiration and it hastens death. It changes end-of-life care into euthanasia.'

Prof Pullicino also claims that an official flow-chart intended to help health workers decide if people sick with Covid-19 were suitable for intensive care wrongly consigned those deemed too frail to end-of-life care.

That meant, he suggested, that some were not taken to hospital even though they could have been helped by doing so.

'Certainly there have been more [unavoidable] deaths because of Covid-19,' he claimed. 'But to me this flow-chart encouraged use of end-of-life sedation with midazolam – effectively resulting in euthanasia pathways.'

Midazolam is similar to diazepam – better known as Valium – but twice as powerful. It reduces anxiety, relaxes muscles and, if enough is given, provides 'total sedation' for dying patients in extreme pain or distress.

On its own and if used with painkilling opiates, it can depress breathing, which is potentially fatal. Eileen Chubb, of the charity

Compassion in Care, said a number of care-home workers had told her sedatives were used too freely during the pandemic, adding that some staff were under the 'definite impression' that very sick care-home residents should not be sent to hospital.

But Dr Amy Proffitt, of the Association for Palliative Medicine, said: 'I absolutely do not believe that there have been cases of euthanasia in care homes related to Covid-19.'

She said a rise in the use of midazolam was to be expected because the drug would have been an obvious choice to give to those with problems breathing, a symptom of coronavirus.

'I can understand why people are raising concerns, but when prescribed and used appropriately, midazolam will not hasten or prolong someone's death – it will just give comfort,' she added.

And I am far from alone in questioning these deaths of loved ones, in fact I know someone who went to the police to report her father's death as murder after the hospital in which her father died claimed that his death was down to Covid 19... Course, the inherently corrupt police were not interested in her claim.

But let's ignore the true facts in favour of conning the hugely gullible public into believing that a virus with over a 99% recovery rate is a threat to us all – A virus, that is so deadly that the vast majority of us have to be tested in order to know if we have it or not.

And have you seen the new rules on football that the Welsh FA have come out with in order to combat the wombat covid bollox?

Un-ber-fucking-lievable! No tackling or marking!!!

Does that not mean that whichever player has the ball then he basically has only the opposition goalie to beat? That isn't football.

And as an aside, I would just like to say that as a life long Leeds United supporter, I was truly saddened to read about the death of Jackie Charlton – brother of Bobby:

After the final whistle in the 1966 World Cup final, Bobby Charlton ran to embrace his elder brother Jack.

'Nobody can ever take this away from us,' said Bobby as they hugged, trying to take in the enormity of what they had achieved with their defeat of West Germany.

Both men were central to the triumph, which to this day remains the greatest moment in England's sporting history...
Source

Big Jack only ever played for Leeds and went on to manage the Republic of Ireland.

I am in fact a bit surprised that they did not put down Jack's death to Covid-19.

Course, Jack played in a different era when the game was totally different to the one being played now.

A game, that in my opinion has not changed for the better.

And talking about Ireland, have you seen their new Children's Minister Roderic O'Gorman?

How the fuck is that cunt not related to the comedy writer & actor Stephen Merchant?

And I call O’Gorman a cunt, simply because he is:

The new Children’s Minister Roderic O’Gorman says children under 16 should be able to change their gender with the consent of their parents or guardians and GP.

The Children’s, Disability, Equality and Integration Minister also hit out at “toxic” and “homophobic” online attacks against him in recent days.

Laws to make it easier for 16 and 17-year-olds to legally change their gender will be introduced by the new coalition under a commitment in the Programme for Government. The document also commits to examining the arrangements for children under 16 who may want to change gender... Source

Worse still, O’Gorman is a good friend to the vile nonce, Peter Tatchell – with whom the Child Minister attends LGBT and Gay Pride rallies:

New Minister for Children Roderic O’Gorman at Dublin Pride 2018 with controversial author Peter Tatchell.

‘To challenge “the assumption that all sex involving children and adults is abusive” is courageous.’

He also tells us that one of his all time heroes & personal friend is the convicted rapist, Mike Tyson.

And if you cannot see what is wrong with all that, then you are one of those people who see fuck all wrong with the governments unbelievable stance on covid-19.

I mean, would you really let that weird looking cunt anywhere near your children?

Furthermore, would you trust him to have your children's best interests at heart?

Indeed, it is no wonder that I am always stressed out, tired and run down... But then again, I might just be a moany old cunt.

BEING constantly stressed, tired and run down can cause you problems. But why do you feel wrecked all the time? Well, according to groundbreaking new research, you could be a moany cunt.

Just sayin'.
