

Just sometimes.

The Daily Mail

Yes, yes, I know all the arguments.

Violence breeds violence. Violence never solved anything. Reacting with violence makes us just as bad as them.

Fuck you.

Some cunts need a right fucking pasting that they will never ever forget.

Xray reveals how Lady the adorable black Labrador was shot 100 TIMES with BB gun in horror attack... and survived

- Lady was found wandering around Waldoboro, Maine, two weeks ago when a good Samaritan took her to Lincoln County Animal Shelter
- There, vets discovered 80-100 BBs lodged in the dog's face, back and legs
- The dog avoided any eye or organ damage and because the BBs are brass she probably doesn't need to get them removed
- Lincoln County Animal Control and the Waldoboro Police Department are trying to track down her attackers

By HELEN POW

PUBLISHED: 19:36, 13 June 2013 | UPDATED: 20:24, 13 June 2013

A black Labrador is recovering after she was shot up to 100 times with a BB gun.

Lady was found wandering around Waldoboro, Maine, two weeks ago when a good Samaritan took her to Lincoln County Animal Shelter. There, vets discovered 80-100 BBs lodged in the dog's face, back and legs.

The one-year-old Labrador, who has since been adopted, miraculously escaped any eye or organ damage and is doing well but Lincoln County Animal Control and the Waldoboro Police Department are trying to track down her attackers.

Hu nt: The Lincoln County Animal Control Office is looking for the culprits who covered one-year-old black Labrador Lady with pellets from a BB gun Boothbay Animal Hospital veterinarian Dr Dean Domeyer, who treated Lady, said the BBs appear to be brass and therefore only need to be removed if they start to infect the dog's skin.

More...

- Man wakes up thinking pet pit bull is licking his toes – to find two of them missing
- YouTube viewers go crazy for reaction of boxer dog after he eats a slice of lime found on the beach

'She's a lucky dog,' Peter Blanton, Lady's new owner, told WCVB.com.

'I mean, she doesn't have any eye damage... and she doesn't seem to have any organ damage, so I think she's going to have a wonderful life. She's very lucky. I think I'm very lucky.'

Dr Domeyer said he thought something was odd when he felt a bump on Lady's snout after she was first brought to authorities.

© Facebook / Lincoln County Animal Shelter

Riddled: An Xray, pictured, showed some 50 BBs in the animal's head alone

Lu cky: There were scores more in Lady's abdomen but she was lucky to get away relatively unharmed

Love: Lady, pictured in an X-ray, has since been adopted and is in the care of her new owner

'It wasn't just another little lump. You could feel something that was hard and round, and it felt like a BB, so we decided to take an X-ray,' Dr Domeyer told the station.

One X-ray revealed 50 BB pellets in the dog's head and another showed there were many more scattered throughout her body.

'There are BBs everywhere. There is one pellet and multiple, multiple BBs,' said Dr Domeyer.

Dr Domeyer said the dog appears to be happy and healthy enough but they'll keep monitoring her to ensure she doesn't develop any health concerns at a later date.

Wandering: The stray lab was found two weeks ago wandering in Waldoboro, Maine, before she was taken to the Lincoln County Animal Shelter

'It still remains with Lady whether we are going to have to do anything about these BBs or not,' he said.

'Right now, none of them pose any threat to her. We have also not done any lead levels or blood cell count to make sure there is no issue, and that's probably on the docket.'

Meanwhile, the adorable hound is settling in well with her new owner, who is treating her like the high class character she is.

'In just one day, she follows me like a shadow. She just wants love, and we love her,' Blanton said.

Read

more: <http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-2341201/Lady-Labrador-shot-Xray-reveals-Lady-adorable-black-Labrador-shot-100->

Thugs shoot horse in the face with a 20-inch bolt arrow from a CROSSBOW

- The 10-year-old horse has been shot in the face with a crossbow
- Bambi, a chestnut mare, was shot with a 20 inch bolt arrow in Barnsley
- She was spotted by a member of the public on Monday night in a field
- Experts say Bambi was lucky as the arrow went into the sinus four inches deep

By JAYMI MCCANN

PUBLISHED: 15:01, 13 June 2013 | UPDATED: 15:12, 13 June 2013

A 10-year-old horse has been shot in the face with a crossbow in a brutal act of animal cruelty.

The RSPCA is appealing for help after Bambi, a chestnut mare, was shot in the nose with a 20 inch bolt arrow, believed to be fired from a crossbow, in Barnsley, south Yorkshire.

The injured pony was spotted by a horrified member of the public on Monday night at around 7pm in a field in Barnsley.

Bambi was shot in the nose with a bolt arrow believed to have come from a crossbow. The member of the public contacted the RSPCA, however inspectors were not able to get near Bambi without causing further distress to the animal.

More...

- Nature and wildlife at its most beautiful: Photographs from around the world reveal our planet at its very best
- The Secret Life of a Cat: What mischievous moggies get

up to behind their owners' backs

Inspector Joanne Taylor called out a vet who assessed the horse from a distance and concluded it was safe to leave her until the owners arrived, as to catch her would have caused her more anxiety.

Bambi was taken to the equine unit of a local vet on Tuesday, where X-rays revealed the arrow had gone into the sinus four inches deep.

Experts say that the chestnut mare was lucky the arrow hadn't gone through her face as she would have died. The arrow was removed and her puncture wound stitched up.

Her owners, who do not wish to be named, said: 'We were horrified by what had happened, and so upset to think that someone was wandering around the area brandishing a dangerous weapon.'

Vet Bill Black said: 'Bambi was extremely lucky that the arrow had not struck her in the forehead as she would have been dead.'

The arrow was 20 inches long and was embedded four inches into the horse's sinus

Inspector Taylor said: 'This was a horrific and deliberate act of animal cruelty on a defenceless animal.'

'The arrow had caused Bambi so much distress, every time she moved she banged it causing her more pain and it really unnerved her, you could tell she was terrified by what had happened.'

'We believe this arrow bolt is likely to have been fired from a cross bow, the bolt had one red and two yellow quills on it.'

Read

more: <http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-2341035/Thugs-shoot-horse-face-20-inch-bolt-arrow-CROSSBOW.html#ixzz2WB2m2PiC>

Follow us: @MailOnline on Twitter | DailyMail on Facebook