

Oh Bollocks

The Daily Mail

A bit fucking drastic if you ask me.

The fella has balls though... Or not, as the case might be.

Man cuts off his testicles with scissors before bursting into a church just half an hour before couple were due to get married

- Unnamed man is said to have cut off his testicles with a pair of scissors
- He then burst into All Saints Church in Hutton, Essex, shortly before a wedding was due to take place
- The reverend called 999 and the man was rushed to hospital
- Wedding went ahead at the church half an hour later

By SUZANNAH HILLS

PUBLISHED: 07:15, 20 September 2013 | UPDATED: 09:09, 20 September 2013

A man cut off his own testicles and stormed into a church shortly before a couple were due to be married.

Reverend Bob Wallace and a florist were making preparations for the wedding ceremony at Hutton All Saints Church in Essex when the man burst in around 12.25pm.

They realised the man had injured his genitals and managed to stop wedding guests from entering the church while they waited for police to arrive on September 14.

A man is believed to have cut off his testicles before bursting into All Saints Church in Hutton, Essex, shortly before a couple were due to get married

Rev Wallace told the Huffington Post UK: 'Somebody came into the church having self harmed outside.'

'Guests started to arrive for the wedding but were told they were not allowed to go inside.'

More...

- Mother's horror as her five-month-old baby dies after she left him on conveyor belt at Spanish airport and he got trapped in the mechanism
- British Miss World contestants warned of violent threats from Islamic extremists after protests over 'pornographic' contest
- Police launch 'suicide patrols' at busy railway lines across Britain in bid to stop people taking their own

lives

One of the guests told the Brentwood Weekly News: 'There was blood all over the floor just outside the church. When I went in there it was like someone had been murdered. There was blood everywhere.'

'The vicar knew of the man and said he had come into the church as they were setting up. He said the man had chopped his testicles off with a pair of scissors and was going bezerk, chucking chairs around. I'm surprised he didn't pass out.'

'When I went in the church, I saw something on the floor which I could only describe as flesh, which I thought was part of his arm but that was one of his testicles.'

Emergency: The unnamed man was taken to Basildon Hospital in Essex to be treated for his injuries

The vicar called 999 and police and an ambulance attended the scene.

A spokesman for Essex Police said: 'Police were called by the ambulance service to All Saints Church, in Church Lane, Hutton, at around 12.25pm on September 14.

'A man with mental health problems was found in the church with serious injuries.

'He was taken to hospital to be treated for his injuries, which police investigations have led them to believe were self-inflicted.

'He was then referred for a mental health assessment.'

The wedding went ahead half an hour later with the bride said to be unaware of the incident.

Read

more: <http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-2426477/Man-cuts-testicles-bursting-church-just-half-hour-couple-married.html#ixzz2fQBJyHx9>

Follow us: @MailOnline on Twitter | DailyMail on Facebook