

Site closure.

Christopher Spivey

After taking the last three weeks to carefully consider my position I have come to the decision that I have no other choice but to close this website.

Nobody else that I know has to pay nearly £270 per month to keep a website online and it would seem that all that I have achieved in doing so is to get myself into an horrific financial nightmare.

Therefore this site will go offline sometime after the 9th of April. To those few of you who have helped keep me online for so long, I thank you from the bottom of my heart and I hope that you understand that I have not taken this decision lightly.
