

Surrender to love: “The abuse of Grandma B”.

The Press/Chris Spivey.

Peter Hofschroer first wrote to me, what must now be at least well over two years ago to tell me about his on-going battle with the Establishment, of which he has provided me with literally a mountain of legal documents and correspondence offering irrefutable proof of large scale corruption & fraud involving the North Yorkshire Police – who protected Jimmy Savile – and Social Services.

Unfortunately, Peter’s contact with me came just as my then relatively busy website really took off in earnest and with the many complicated twists and turns to the story, along with the amount of extra work that comes with having a busy website, it became impossible for me to give over the time needed to write Peters story – which I must confess that back then, I did not think that the story would have had sufficient public interest to justify doing so.

However, to Peter’s credit he continued to send me updates and proof of his claims and in hindsight, I kinda wish that I had made the time to get involved in this abhorrent story of large scale corruption and mass fraud, especially with Peter being only one of many, many similar victims.

Now, when I say that the fraud involved – and no doubt still does – collusion between the NY Police & Social Services, many of you will automatically jump to the conclusion that this is another case of child-stealing... It isn't.

In fact, if anything it is more a case of parent stealing... Along with their assets & life savings.

And this is indeed the situation that Peter found himself in after his war-hero father died, after which his mother, Barbara, was defrauded out of all her worldly goods by her younger son Robert in league with his son & daughter (Grandma B's grandchildren), certain North Yorkshire policemen, social workers & council officials, all of whom deliberately set in motion an evil plan that has since come to be known as "The Abuse of Grandma B".

A FORMER German Luftwaffe gunner and his English bride have celebrated their diamond wedding – 63 years after meeting when he was a prisoner-of-war.

Paul Hofschröder was captured by the British at the surrender of Calais in 1944.

Mr Hofschröder, now 87, served in the German anti-aircraft artillery and was awarded a silver Flak Badge for his prowess at shooting down Allied planes.

After being shipped to England, he was sent to work on a farm in Essex and it was there that he first saw his future wife, Barbara, who visited the farm to pick fruit.

"We weren't really allowed to see each other, but we did what we weren't allowed to," said Barbara at the couple's home in Acomb, York.

"The moment we met each other, that was it. We loved each other right away.

"He was really handsome and was such a nice man. We got on so well."

She said there were some people who frowned on her having a relationship with a German prisoner-of-war – but she felt no shame.

She said: "If the prisoners of war went wear big blue patches on their backs so people knew who they were.

"Once we were going for a walk together and a man shouted to ask if my mother knew where I was. I replied 'yes', and he told me I should be ashamed of myself. I didn't let it worry me."

Two years after his arrival in England, Paul was moved to London where he was put to work in bomb disposal.

The couple were married on October 18, 1948, shortly before his release.

They marked their 60 years of married life by throwing a party for 30 friends and family.

They have two children, Peter and Robert, two grandchildren, Diane and Martin, and one great grandson, Mattias.

Paul worked as a continental caterer following his release, before later finding work at the German Embassy, in London. Meanwhile, Barbara worked with deaf children and was once invited to a garden party at Buckingham Palace, in recognition of her work.

The couple, who enjoyed travelling the world in their younger years, moved to York when they retired in 1985.

Barbara, who worked as a volunteer in the Cats' Protection League shop, in Walmgate for many years, said: "It has been 60 happy years together."

The following is just one of many updates sent to me by Grandma B's eldest son and legal guardian Peter Hofschröder, from which you will be able to get the gist of the story:

Barbara Hofschröder is 85 year-old, wheelchair-bound and a victim of horrific abuse, which is now into its seventh year. Her case, which has been raised by Lord Maginnis in Parliament several times now, has become known as "The Abuse of Grandma B".

Earlier today, journalist Andy Peacher of Freedom Talk Radio, published a message announcing his intention to pay a welfare visit to Grandma B. Since being unlawfully abducted by her main abuser York social worker Robert Hofschröder on 6 May 2014, she has been held hostage in his house and subjected to further abuse.

A report produced by York Social Services indicates that Grandma B is being denied her normal medication, sedated and padded up as Robert cannot be bothered to take her to the toilet. She then gets cleaned up four times a day by carers. The abduction has severely traumatised her and it is her wish to be returned to her legal gaurdian Peter Hofschröer, whose care for her in the last six years has been described by doctors and others as exemplary.

Furthermore, Robert was caught by Halifax Bank attempting to steal her pension money.

Concerned supporters then decided they should pay her a welfare visit and Andy announced this. Within minutes, the police were at his door telling him that if he did so, he would be arrested for causing a breach of the peace.

Yes, that is right. If you knock on the door of a person who is profoundly deaf, North Yorkshire Police consider that to be a breach of their peace! That is just a small example of how the twisted minds of police officers work.

This contrasts sharply with the wilful failure of North Yorkshire Police to record and investigate a single complaint made over a period of fifty or more years by the possibly thousands of victims of the Savile / Jaconelli child rapist gang. The evidence now coming into the public domain indicates that it was not just for a free ticket to "Jim'll fix it!" or an ice-cream that North Yorkshire Police turned a blind eye to this. No, it seems that senior officers were and probably still are up to their what's its in this sickening abuse.

This also contrasts sharply with the wilful failure of North Yorkshire Police to record and investigate a single complaint made over a period of six or more years by Grandma B and her supporters of the many crimes Robert and his accomplices have committed against her, including fraud, kidnapping, theft, assault, conspiracy to pervert the course of justice, misconduct in public office and other serious crimes for which there is a potential of life imprisonment.

The inquisitive reader of this blog might be wondering how come the police are not willing to arrest Robert Hofschröder and his accomplices for the many serious offences they have demonstrably committed, but are more than willing to make threats to anybody making a complaint about this.

That was exactly how they handled complaints about the Savile / Jaconelli gang for fifty years, who were prolific child rapists and supplied victims to VIPs and others.

Does anybody need three guesses as to why Robert Hofschröder, who, by running council-funded York Deaf Society, has access to vulnerable children and adults, is getting the same sort of protection from the same police force?

Now, you also need to understand that this asset stealing from our OAP's is not confined to North Yorkshire (see HERE) – albeit their police force is particularly vile.

However, the reason that I have run this story today – albeit the above is only a tiny fraction of the full story – is that Peter, who has doggedly refused to let the abuse of his mother become buried, has now been arrested after Police Officers found... Wait for it, wait for it... Thousands of “indecent images” of children on his computer:

A 58-YEAR-OLD man has appeared before York magistrates facing 18 charges relating to around 7,000 indecent images of children.

Peter Hofschroer, formerly of Rosedale Avenue, Acomb, is expected to deny all the allegations he faces.

Between them the charges allege he made indecent images of children on different dates over a ten-year period between 1999 and 2009.

Magistrates decided the case was too serious for them to deal with and sent him to York Crown Court where he will appear on December 15.

Hofschroer, who represented himself, was remanded him in custody. Source

How very fucking original!

Now, as I say, I have a mountain of evidence naming policemen, social workers, politicians & council officials, sent to me by Peter which proves beyond all doubt that he is telling the truth about the harassment & abuse that he and his mother have been subjected to.

Moreover, back when Peter first started corresponding with me and I was in the process of checking him out – as I do everyone who sends me a story for obvious reasons – Peter took it on his own bat to send me the e-mail addresses of some of those involved in the abuse of Grandma B (found below minus their e-mail addresses), so as I could get their side of the story... A sure sign of the man's integrity.

Therefore, I have no doubt whatsoever that Peter is entirely innocent of the child pornography allegations – the plod really, really ought to use a bit more imagination.

Indeed, the very fact that Peter has been remanded in custody speaks volumes and further reinforces the fact that Peter is being set up.

I therefore find myself asking just how many more innocent people are we prepared to tolerate being stitched up, humiliated, vilified and locked up for the abhorrent crime of exposing the criminal activities of those in authority.
