

The Teachers Pet

The Daily Chimpanzee

Morning All

As you may know, we had the Gremlins in yesterday who apparently stole the 'Sunday Spiv' article.

Furthermore, having worked on it through Saturday night/Sunday morning right through to Sunday afternoon, I had a bit of a marathon kip and didn't know that the article had gone until 6 this morning.

There is a bit more than that to the disappearance but I won't bore you with the details and needless to say, Wolfie is on the case and investigating the cause.

Anyway, the upshot is, that article is now back up in its entirety.

So, if you have read it, you will know that I commented on a Chimp article about a female school teacher who spent the night with one of her 16 year old pupils, with the full consent of the boys dad.

Now, I did say yesterday in that comment that I wasn't sure if the article was legit or just more made up old fanny by the Monkey Boys in order to further the Nonce Agenda.

Well, today, the Chimp has a follow up (found below) and to be Frank – because its a good manly name – I’m still not fucking sure.

You see, the article just doesn’t ring true in places.

I mean, for starters the teacher, Bernadette Smith says that she embarked on the 10 days of “madness” with young Gary Ralston after discovering that her husband had a ‘secret’ son, whom she claims she found out about after reading a letter from the Child Support Agency... But that was in 2009:

Smith, of Denny, Stirlingshire, claimed her marriage to her childhood sweetheart – which is now over – began crumbling in 2009 when the Child Support Agency requested maintenance for a boy her husband had fathered with another woman.

The child was conceived nine months after the Smiths married in 2005.

Therefore, her fling with Gary cannot have fuck all to do with the secret child.

The affair took place last September and on discovery her husband kicked her out, so I can’t see how her marriage was crumbling in 2009.

However Smith says that she wasn’t attracted to Gary and was only trying to help him... But if you believe that old fanny, you will believe anything.

Course, there is no accounting for human behaviour but even if her marriage was on the rocks and she had tried making things right with her husband only to be knocked back, it still doesn’t make sense for her having an affair with Gary in a bid to make him jealous or get back at him.

You see, it has to be said that Gary doesn’t look 16... He looks a lot younger.

Therefore, she wasn't hurting anyone but herself.

I mean, had she wanted to make her husband jealous, sleeping with a little boy isn't the way to go about it.

Moreover, Smith maintains that her and Gary didn't have sex, yet she admitted to it in court:

Smith was handed a two-year supervision order last week and has been put on the sex offenders' register after admitting to engaging in sexual activity with a pupil while in a position of trust last September.

I am pretty sure that kissing isn't classed as 'sexual activity' in a court of law, although I may be wrong on that score.

Never the less, despite Gary being 16, all the indications point to Smith being a paedophile.

However, one thing is for sure and that is The Chimp couldn't write a decent report if they tried.

Indeed, it is the norm for their reports to leave more questions than answers.

And that my friends, can only be to muddy the waters... Just sayin'

My ten days of madness, by teacher who seduced pupil of 16: She claims husband's lies over his secret son sent her over the edge

- Bernadette Smith, 35, kissed and cuddled Gary Ralson, 16, at Cowie home
- She spent night in his bed – but kept vest top on and they did not have sex
- Yesterday, Smith blamed husband Brian's secret son for sordid behaviour
- Only learned of his deceit after Child Support Agency asked for maintenance
- Also claimed she started affair after trying to be 'positive influence' on Gary
- Teacher admitted engaging in sexual activity with student last September

- Handed supervision order last week and also put on sex offenders' register

By ANDY DOLAN

PUBLISHED: 23:40, 2 March 2014 | UPDATED: 23:41, 2 March 2014

A teacher who had an affair with a 16-year-old pupil yesterday told of the 'ten days of madness' which culminated in her spending the night in his bed.

Married Bernadette Smith, 35, kissed and cuddled Gary Ralston after the teenager's father invited her into their home – but said she kept a tiny vest top on and did not have sex with the boy.

Yesterday the mother of three blamed her husband Brian's continued deceit over an affair which had resulted in a love child for triggering her own sordid behaviour with the teenager.

+8

Split: Bernadette Smith, 35, blamed her husband Brian's continued deceit over an affair which had resulted in a love child for triggering her own behaviour with Gary Ralston, 16. Above, Smith with her estranged husband

+8

+8

Affair: Smith (left) kissed and cuddled Gary (right) after the teen's father, Richard, invited her into their home

She learned of his infidelity only when the Child Support Agency began chasing him for maintenance.

The English and history teacher claimed she started her affair after trying to be a 'positive influence' and help Gary.

More...

- Paedophile special constable who fled Britain after jail release is back behind bars after being deported from Cambodia for sex offences against young boys
- Montana teacher who was jailed for just 30 days after student he raped killed herself says HE is the victim of a 'lynch mob'

She said: 'There never came a point where I thought I was attracted to him. I just knew I was thinking about him too much.

'We were starting to have conversations which went beyond what should be said between a teacher and a pupil. He told me things about his home life, and, stupidly, I started to tell him about the problems in my marriage.

+8

Waived anonymity: The English and history teacher spent the night in Gary's bed – but said she kept a tiny vest on and did not have sex with the teenager. Above, Gary poses in his bedroom in Cowie, Stirlingshire

'I want to say sorry to Gary. I only became interested in him because I wanted to help him. I wanted to be something positive in his life and I ended up being the opposite.'

Smith was handed a two-year supervision order last week and has been put on the sex offenders' register after admitting to engaging in sexual activity with a pupil while in a position of trust last September.

Smith revealed how she told Gary – who waived his right to anonymity in his own interview last week – at school that she had developed feelings for him.

+8

Claims: Smith said she learned of her husband's infidelity only when the Child Support Agency began chasing him for maintenance. She claimed she started her affair after trying to be a 'positive influence' and help Gary

+8

+8

'Proud': Last week, Mr Ralston (left) admitted being 'a bit' proud of his son for catching the teacher's (right) eye

They later drove to a local park, spending 'hours' talking and kissing in her car. Within days, they had kissed again, but Smith was unaware that Gary had told his father Richard, whom he lived with, about the relationship.

In Saturday's Daily Mail, Mr Ralston admitted to being 'a bit' proud of his son for catching the attractive teacher's eye and said he felt sorry for her when she was arrested.

But Gary's grandmother complained to the school and the police were brought in.

Smith was suspended and left the marital home, going straight to the Ralstons' house in Cowie, Stirlingshire.

+8

Scene: Smith has been handed a supervision order for two years and put on the sex offenders' register after admitting engaging in sexual activity with a pupil while in a position of trust at Bannockburn High School (above)

Mr Ralston – who separated from Gary's mother, Carol Morgan, when the boy was a toddler – allowed her into his son's bedroom, where the pair spent the night together, though both insist they did not have sex.

Smith said: 'I took off my T-shirt and lay on his bed. I had a wee vest top on underneath. He was under the covers but I wasn't. We did kiss that night as well.'

'There never came a point where I thought I was attracted to him. I just knew I was thinking about him too much'

Bernadette Smith

She was arrested the next day – after going to Gary’s home again. Smith, of Denny, Stirlingshire, claimed her marriage to her childhood sweetheart – which is now over – began crumbling in 2009 when the Child Support Agency requested maintenance for a boy her husband had fathered with another woman.

The child was conceived nine months after the Smiths married in 2005.

Mr Smith, a bus driver, claimed the child was the product of a one-night stand and his wife decided to forgive him.

But she told how she later discovered her husband had continued the affair with the child’s mother, who was also married. She said: ‘I thought my world had ended.’

Read

more: <http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-2571640/Teacher-Bernadette-Smith-affair-student-claims-husbands-lies-secret-son-sent-edge.html#ixzz2ussaYkby>

Follow us: @MailOnline on Twitter | DailyMail on Facebook